

"Has Britain got sport upside down?":

PBE welcomes Simon Kuper to the Royal Institution

Monday 27th February 2017, 7pm
21 Albemarle Street London W1S 4BS

REGISTER NOW

Every gold medal won at the Rio Olympics cost the UK an estimated £5.5 million. However, the average UK citizen in 2017 will do less than 30 minutes of exercise each week.

Every fortnight, the government sells off a school playing field to a corporate household name. Meanwhile, childhood obesity and mental illness in teenagers continue to rise with a growing burden on the public purse.

Has Britain got sport upside down?

Simon Kuper, author of "Soccernomics" and Financial Times columnist, will look at why investment in British sport has become so polarised. Drawing on Simon's extensive knowledge of the UK sports industry, the evening is set to ask some challenging questions on the link between sport, public health and the economy in 2017.

Visit our website to register:

www.probonoeconomics.com/news/has-britain-got-sport-upside-down

PRO BONO ECONOMICS

To donate to PBE, please click here:

Our mailing address is:

The Clarence Centre
6 St. George's Circus
London SE1 6FE

unsubscribe from this list | update subscription preferences

This email was sent to <<Email Address>>

why did I get this? unsubscribe from this list update subscription preferences

fiona.ramsay@probonoeconomics.com · The Clarence Centre · 6 St George's Circus · London, London SE1 6FE · United Kingdom

