

How did we do?

In seven years, Pro Bono Economics has engaged with nearly 300 charities and has offered professional volunteering opportunities to over 300 economists.

With that in mind, we want to know more about your experience and views on PBE, including:

- What challenges charities face
- How can economists help
- What can other experts contribute

We will use your insights to improve our service.

Please click the link below to get started or copy it into your browser. It should only take you 5-10 minutes.

We'll be discussing the results at a breakfast seminar on Tuesday March 28th
Stay tuned for more details.

About this survey

This survey is being conducted by FTI Consulting on behalf of Pro Bono Economics. Your responses will be handled confidentially in adherence with the principles of ESOMAR (the international organisation for market researchers).

"Has Britain got sport upside down?"

PBE welcomes Simon Kuper to the Royal Institution

Monday 27th February 2017, 7pm

21 Albemarle Street London W1S 4BS

Simon Kuper, author of "Soccernomics" and Financial Times columnist, will look at why investment in British sport has become so polarised. Drawing on Simon's extensive knowledge of the UK sports industry, the evening is set to ask some challenging questions on the link between sport, public health and the economy in 2017.
